THE FLOOR OF THE OCEAN. Depth of the Seas.

From Harper's Magazine.

The ocean has been sounded in nearly all directions with modern appliances, and these soundings show that the floor of the ocean consists of vast undulating face of the waves. In some places huge ridges and cones rise from fathoms of the sea surface, or they may rise above the surface as volcanic islands and coral atolls. The greatest depth hitherto recorded is in the Chailenger (or Nero) Deep in the North Pacific, 5,259 fathoms. If Mount Everest were placed in this deep, 2,600 feet of water would roll over the peak of this, the highest mountain in the world. The greatest depth in the Atlantic is in the Nares Deep, between the West Indies and Bermuda-4.662 fathoms. The greatest depth in the Indian Ocean is fathorns, in the Wharton Deep, between Christmas Island and the coast of Java. We now know fifty-six of these deeps where the depth exceeds three geograph-ical miles, ten areas where the depth exceeds four miles, and four places where it exceeds five miles.

Two Good Rat Stories. From the New Orleans Pleasume.
Wonder why women are frightened by rats? That's one thing we never could understand. We recall an exchange of courtesies between a man and his wife one night in a restaurant, and the cour-tesies were curious and conflicting, and, were fast leading up to the riot standard. the woman "holding her own," and even more than that, when a rat ran across the room. That settled the dispute. The woman jumped on the table, among all the dishes, showing ankles and lingerle that would have made a Dutch danseuse dizzy with delirium. But the row stopped and the laughter began. The latest rat story, however, comes from Brooklyn, and it runs like this: During a matinee performance at one of the theaters, while the house was crowded, a rat appeared in one of the sisles, and consternation seized the crowd instanter. jumped on orchestra chairs, danced the Highland fling and other flings, screamed and acted like mad, while the rat ran riot through the rows of seats. At one stage of the stampede all the women of business. The actors lost their lines, the women lost their reason, and the rat lost its life. Why are women frightened

From the New York Times. This country is already plotted with transcontinental highways through the air, marked out on maps of favorable air currents and following the level stretches of land and water. The Aero Club, as reported in the dispatches recently, has at rats, and still wear them in their hair!

stretched two new highways of the air across the Tebachapi Mountains from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and has plotted out three more aerial routes to Chicago, and four from Chicago to the Atlantic. The first of this new specie of cartog-raphy appeared in New England, mark-ing out the air, or, rather, the earth from a perspective suspended in air, with ink of indelible red or black. This map covered the way from Portland, Me., to Burlington, Vt., and thence to Bridge-port, Com. It was suggested that canon-ists and hoboes might gobble up the first edition, because of its accurate delineation of the contour of rivers and railways. Miss Clark's Literary Ambitton.

From the New York Press.
Despite the prophecies of a great social future for Genevieve Bennett Clark, the only daughter of the Speaker, that young girl evidently has a mind of her own and doesn't intend to consult social leaders as to what she shall do. She will be seventeen this autumn, but it is unlikely she will make her debut then, as she has shown a decided preference for schooling, which, no doubt, her father indorses. Miss Genevieve has announced her intention of finishing her studies complete a literary course. Already she has shown a talent that way, and it is her ambition to become a writer. She is an attractive and bright girl, and Wash ington society still hopes to capture her for its own,
